

As a former student of Journalism, and now a freelance designer at an independently owned national magazine, Utne magazine, I am strongly against further deregulation of the media. We need more diverse and objective now more than ever before. Most cities will soon be dominated by one single major media corporation. It will not take long for news programs and publications to lose their last remaining shreds of diversity and objectivity. There needs to be serious dialogue about this issue, it is too important to push through without the nation's voice.

Thank you,

Jennifer Dix